

Photo for the Tribune by Brian Kersey

Leonard Slatkin conducts the Midwest Young Artist's Symphony Orchestra in Dvorak's Symphony No. 9, "From the New World," at the Harris Theater on Sunday.

nightclubs, but one would never know from listening to their sultry portrait of one in the second movement of Paul Schoenfield's "Café Music."

This celebration of American music was filled out with several delightful performances by the school's Big Band (under directors Nic Meyer and Bruce Daugherty) and Chorale (with Gordon Krauspe).