

Clarinet Workshop

June 24 - 28, 2013

The MYA Clarinet Workshop offers an intensive week of training for the serious clarinet student. This unique workshop is designed to focus on technical fundamentals and explore refined musical expression. Students will study and discuss important etudes, sonatas, and solos. This workshop is an excellent introduction to traditional US conservatory training and is intended for the student considering participation in a college program.

Faculty

Dileep Gangolli is an active clarinet teacher and performer in the Chicago area. Currently on the faculty of the Midwest Young Artists and the Illinois Woodwind Academy, he has previously taught at North Park University and the VanderCook College of Music. He is a member of the Chicago Sinfonietta, the Lake Forest Symphony Orchestra, and the Joffrey Ballet Orchestra. Mr. Gangolli holds degrees from Northwestern University, Southern Methodist University, and the University of Washington. His principal teachers include Robert Marcellus, Anthony Gigliotti, and Ronald Phillips. In 1986 he was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship for study in the United Kingdom.

Guest Faculty

Dependent on enrollment, guest artists from local colleges and orchestras will be invited to hold master classes, coach ensembles, and conduct the Workshop Clarinet Choir. In the past, John Bruce Yeh, Assistant Principal Clarinet, Chicago Symphony Orchestra, has appeared and has been invited to appear at the 2013 Clarinet Workshop along with his wife and fellow clarinetist, Teresa Reilly.
